Education

Jahrom University, Jahrom, Iran – Bachelor

September 2009 – June 2015

Started studying software engineering in Jahrom University for almost 6 years. The 6 years of studying has been because I wanted to also learn this field not just theoretically but also practically. I was working as a freelancer with different companies in Shiraz, Iran. But I don't think software engineers will ever graduate.

! About me

All the skills and knowledge I have gathered all these years could not be possible without a passion for continuous learning and improvement.

I had the chance to be surrounded by really talented individuals from different parts of the world to understand different mindsets and point of views and of course value a constructive environment.

In any company or projects I have participated in, I have always tried to leave a footprint and make sure all my colleagues even without me can still continue and be successful. In the past five years, I have been focusing on developing enterprise level products. This has made me more patient and careful while I still am courageous enough to try something new and make sure the code base or product will not suffer deprecation in the short term. In short, I still can have a lot of fun while maintaining or migrating or building a product.

I have never limited myself only to the company I have worked with. I also enjoy contributing to the community and helping others improve. My latest example for this which is also something I am really proud of is Neo4j.Berries.OGM which is an object-graph-mapper for neo4j in dotnet. This passion comes from love/talent or whatever society calls it, I deeply enjoy solving problems and providing for my team.

With all this being said, I look forward to meeting you and having a great conversation together!

Cheers,
Farhad
